

DOG QUARANTINE ORDER IS ISSUED

Eastern Prince Georges and Part of Anne Arundel Is Included.

Dr. Mark F. Welsh, Maryland State veterinarian, declared today a 90-day dog quarantine will be placed tomorrow on the eastern district of Prince Georges County and around Woodland Beach, in Anne Arundel County, as a safeguard against the spread of rabies.

The quarantine, Dr. Welsh said, was decided upon after he conferred yesterday with officials of the two counties and municipal officers of Brentwood, Hyattsville, Riverdale and Chillum, in the area to be quarantined.

Under the law all dogs within the sector, which will be marked with placards, must be confined or held on leash for three months. Those dogs running at large will be destroyed.

Dr. Welsh, who resides at College Park, declared the disease takes from two weeks to three months to manifest itself, but a rabid dog may transmit the virus five days before he shows symptoms of madness.

Steps to effect the quarantine came after two cases of rabies were discovered. In Brentwood a family of seven came into contact with a dog who later died of rabies. Three were bitten. A Washington family took their dog to Woodland Beach last week and the pet died of rabies early this week.

Another Brentwood man was bitten this week by a dog that escaped. All those who came into contact with the three dogs are being given Pasteur treatments as a precautionary measure.

Another dog-biting case was reported today by a victim who identified himself to police as an employee of the Department of Agriculture. He said he was bitten by a dog near Muirkirk, which is in the area to be quarantined.

The man told police he would ask health officials to have the dog examined.

Dr. Welsh said this morning that officials were "reluctant to quarantine such a large area in Prince Georges County," but added that it was necessary to do so "because the dog with whom the Brentwood family came into contact was quite a traveler and there is no way to determine how far he roamed or how many dogs he infected."

Dr. A. B. Hooton, Prince Georges County health officer, declared the Washington family's dog contracted the disease from another dog in South Carolina.

CHAMBERLAIN WINS

STAFFORD, England, June 10 (AP).—The government retained its Stafford seat in the House of Commons today in a by-election caused by the elevation of William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, former colonial secretary, to the peerage.

G. E. P. Thornycroft, a Conservative, defeated the Labor candidate, F. G. Lloyd, by 4,408 votes, a slight increase over the Conservative margin in the last Stafford election.

The Postman Rang Twice

The postman stopped twice at the modest home of Mrs. Sadie Leslie Monssen in Brooklyn, N. Y. First he left a letter which said the Government will name a destroyer in honor of her late husband, Lt. Monssen, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in 1904 for saving the battleship Missouri when fire bit toward her powder magazine. The postman called again and left another letter. This one said the Home Owners' Loan Corp. will foreclose on her home. Mrs. Monssen is shown looking at a photograph of her late husband.—Copyright, A. P. Wirephoto.

TURNER AND BRADY SIGNED BY REDSKINS

G. W. Halfback and Georgetown Tackle Will Perform With Professional Club.

Jay Turner, 24-year-old George Washington halfback, and Patrick Brady, 23-year-old Georgetown tackle, today were signed for the 1938 season by the Redskins, Washington's entry in the National Professional Football League.

Turner, adjudged the Colonials' most valuable player last season chiefly due to his defensive brilliance, is a native of Tulsa, Okla., and weighs 188 pounds. His catch of a game-winning touchdown pass against Wake Forest after the final gun had barked was one of the local season's major thrills in 1937.

Brady, 6-foot 2-inch, 210-pound Boston boy, performed a year at Holy Cross and three years at Georgetown and is regarded as a promising professional prospect.

LORTON RELEASE PLEA FOR GORMLEY WEIGHED

Was Convicted of Conspiracy to Obtain $5,000 in Extortion Plot in 1933.

Members of the District Parole Board have taken under advisement the petition for the release from the Lorton Reformatory of George A. Gormley, who was convicted in 1933 of conspiring with Countess Grace de Benque in an extortion plot.

The two were convicted of conspiring to obtain $5,000 from Miss Louise Maret, proprietor of a fashionable girls' school. The court heard evidence that the money was obtained under a suggestion that Miss Maret's reputation would be damaged unless she paid the sum.

Countess de Benque was paroled in October, 1936.

RABIES VACCINE HELD UNCERTAIN

Other Safeguards Advised by U. S. Agency for Effective Control.

Vaccination of dogs against rabies should be considered only an aid to other measures, such as quarantine and muzzling, in efforts to control outbreaks of rabies, the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry advised today.

Limited experiments conducted by the bureau indicate that resistance to rabies can be increased in many dogs by a single injection of vaccine, but that such inoculation is not always 100 per cent effective. Dr. H. W. Schoening, principal veterinarian of the bureau, said.

"This resistance (as a result of vaccination) is only relative," he said. "In some animals it may be strong, in others weak, or lacking, so that some of these animals may be able to withstand actual exposure to the disease whereas others may not. Vaccination by itself, no matter how effective, can not control outbreaks of the disease. Other standard measures such as impounding and proper disposal of stray dogs, licensing and quarantine regulations, vigorously enforced, must be employed."

There are two general types of rabies—the furious or irritable and the dumb or paralytic type, he pointed out. In the furious form, the diseased dog's disposition changes radically. An ordinarily affectionate dog may become morose and depressed, while a snapping animal may become cowardly or affectionate.

This stage, Dr. Schoening continued, is followed in a few days by an irresistible tendency to roam, and the dog bites at anything that interferes with its freedom.

Foaming Not Usual. Foaming at the mouth is not a common symptom of rabies, he added, although the secretion of saliva may become excessive through inability of the dog to swallow.

Rabies had been entirely eradicated in some parts of the world, such as in England and Hawaii, by strict quarantines on dogs offered for import and other rigid precautions, he said.

In further reference to the effectiveness of vaccination of dogs against the disease, Dr. Schoening said: "We do not advocate the promiscuous use of vaccine. Occasional reactions from the injection of the vaccine itself have been observed."

These have been indicated by some evidence of partial paralysis. "However, in outbreaks of the disease in communities, vaccination may be of service, in conjunction with other standard measures, in controlling the disease, but vaccination is necessarily only an aid to the standard measures already mentioned."

Vaccine Failures Reported. "In the hands of many veterinarians, the vaccine apparently has been of value in assisting in controlling rabies in the field. Failures of the vaccine also are reported by veterinarians. These results are in accord with our experimental work.

"We do not have exact figures from the field to determine how effective vaccination is. We know it is not 100 per cent effective, and it may also be said that the same statement could apply to almost, if not all, biological products."

"Where rabies vaccines are used, it is important that no false sense of security should prevail because of such vaccination."
